An Introduction to Hebrews

The Author of the Book

There is a great deal of uncertainty as to who wrote the book of Hebrews. Many different people have been suggested as possible authors.

Some think Luke wrote this book. Luke, though, was a Gentile while the author of the book of Hebrews was most definitely a Hebrew himself.

Some people have suggested that Barnabas wrote it. He was a Levite who had been born in Cyprus but lived in the city of Jerusalem so he would have been familiar with the Jewish religion and lifestyle. But, there is no evidence to support the view that he is the author of the book of Hebrews.

There are those who think Apollos is the author. They suggest that because he was such an eloquent speaker and that he had been taught by Aquila and Priscilla that he could have written this book. Apollos was a Jew but he was from the city of Alexandria in Egypt. The author of this book was a Jew who had great knowledge of the city of Jerusalem, the temple and the Jewish Christians there.

Many of the early writers of church history, some almost dating back to the first century, name the apostle Paul as the author of this book. Most of the evidence on record points to him as the writer of the book of Hebrews. Consider the following evidence:

- The author was in prison (10:34). Paul had been imprisoned many times (2 Cor. 11:23).
- The declaration of the Old Testament prophet Habakkuk that “the just shall live by faith” is quoted only three times in the New Testament—twice in Paul’s epistles and once in the book of Hebrews (Rom. 1:17; Gal. 3:11; Heb. 10:38).
- The close companionship the author had with Timothy (13:23).
- The deep spiritual concern the author had for Israel. Compare it to the concern of the apostle Paul for them in Romans 9:1-5 and Romans 10:1-4.
- The writing style, though somewhat different from Paul’s epistles, does bear resemblance to his in several points.
- The closing of the book of Hebrews seems to point to no one but Paul.

In reality, there would be no one more qualified to write such a book as Hebrews than Paul. He had been a “Hebrew of the Hebrews” (Phil. 3:5) who had advanced beyond his contemporaries (Gal. 1:14), who became fully recognized apostle of Christ (2 Cor. 12:11). His training at the feet of Gamaliel (Acts 22:3) provided him with a thorough knowledge of Judaism and the temple. He was always concerned with the spiritual well-being of the Jews. Remember, on his preaching trips wherever he went to a new city he always went to the Jews first.

With all of the above said, though, we still cannot firmly state who the author of the book of Hebrews was. We must agree with noted historian Origen who said, “Who wrote the Epistle God only knows certainly.”

Those to Whom the Book Was Written

It is plain that this book was written to Christians. They are referred to as “brethren” (3:1, 12); “beloved” (6:9); “partakers of the heavenly calling” (3:1); and “partakers of Christ” (3:14).

They were Jewish Christians who were being tempted to turn from Christ and go back to their former religion under the Old Law. They had endured persecutions but they had grown tired of them and had failed to trust God as they once had (10:32-38). Though they had been saved for some time, they were immature as children of God because they had failed to grow spiritually (5:11-14).

Apparently they were well-known to the author and he to them. He planned to visit them upon his release from prison (13:23).

Most scholars suggest they lived in either Rome or Palestine but, as with authorship, no one can be sure where those who received this book lived.

The Date of the Book

Most scholars date the book of Hebrews somewhere around 66 to 68 A.D. just prior to the destruction of the city of Jerusalem (70 A.D.). Timothy was still alive (13:23). Those who received the book were to patiently endure the persecutions anticipated by the destruction of Jerusalem (10:22-25). When you think about it, the real focus of the book would be lost if Jerusalem and the temple were already destroyed.

Why This Book Was Written

This book was written to show the superiority of Jesus and His way of faith to the Old Law and its system of religion. This fact is seen in the fact that the keyword in the book is “better.” It is used thirteen times. Everything connected with Jesus Christ is better than anything that preceded Him.

Showing Christ and His way to be superior to anything that went before was meant to:

- Keep those who received the book from going back to the religion of the Old Law (2:1-4; 10:19-25).
- Provoke the recipients to grow as Christians (5:11-14; 10:32-39).
- Comfort the recipients in their persecutions (11:1 - 12:13).
- Enlighten those who received the book about the chastening [discipline] of the Lord (6:3-12; 10:26-31; 12:3-13).
- Alert its readers to the dangers of false teaching (13:9).
- Encourage the recipients to pray for the author (13:18-25). so? (Gromacki, 315-316)
